THE COLLEGE OF CONTINUING EDUCATION

in cooperation with

The American University Department of Languages and Linguistics

announces

SECOND ANNUAL FOREIGN LANGUAGE TEACHERS' INSTITUTE

June 20-July 23 and July 25-August 27, 1966

The Institute is Designed to:

Develop further competence and meet the needs of secondary school and college teachers of German, Russian, and Spanish.

Give the teacher an opportunity to strengthen his language skills by participating in an intensive audio-lingual program.

Help the teacher to review the latest developments in the methodology of teaching foreign languages.

Provide a possibility for further professional advancement and academic growth.

A Teacher Electing This Program:

Will be able to earn up to twelve hours of graduate academic credit during one summer.

Will participate in a special foreign language teacher workshop.

May enroll in the German, Russian or Spanish program leading to a M.A. degree at The American University.

The Institute Offers:

Modern class-room oriented programs with excellent equipment for foreign language study and practice.

Intensive language courses taught by native speakers of German, Russian, and Spanish.

Use of unique educational and cultural facilities found in the nation's capital.

ABOUT THE COLLEGE OF CONTINUING EDUCATION

Like the symbol above, the activities of the College of Continuing Education are focused within the uncompleted circle of education. Dedicated to the continuing collegiate education of adults, this college is concerned with those students whose full-time occupations are other than the pursuit of their education.

Many adults have begun college programs they were unable to complete. Others may have embarked upon careers, advancement in which requires additional studies. Early retirees seek courses enabling them to pursue a second career. Housewives return to college to pursue special interests or to prepare themselves for re-entry into the business and professional worlds. The purpose of the College of Continuing Education is to provide a nucleus for the double arcs of work and study in a program geared to the never ending search for learning.
